

This chart shows 2 million ounces of ‘paper gold’ being dumped at the COMEX futures market between 08.43 and 08.45 on Friday October 11th, 2013. These are gold contracts that do not represent physical gold. Anyone with enough money to put up 5% margin can buy or sell futures. The dishonesty of this particular trade was that it ran against normal trading procedure. If someone was trying to hedge against a large gold position, or if someone wanted to pre-sell gold that was about to be mined, the natural method would be to obtain the best price possible. In the sale shown in this chart, the objective was to smash the price down hard with the intent to buy the contracts back at a lower price. This is blatant manipulation. Because it helps the US government to keep faith in the dollar by keeping people from buying gold, the authorities that are supposed to be protecting the investing public from manipulators are turning a blind eye to this corrupt behavior. This type of trading action has been seen several times before, and no one has been prosecuted. Meanwhile China, India, Russia and several other countries are buying up hundreds of tonnes of physical gold at bargain prices. This demand for ‘real gold’ guarantees that the corrupt trading practices in this chart will end, and gold will seek its real value.
